

RacingThePlanet Returns to the Beautiful Country of Georgia in June 2022 for a Special Edition Race which Will Count as Part of the Famed 4 Deserts Ultramarathon Series

We are very excited to announce that RacingThePlanet will be returning to Georgia, a country at the intersection of Europe and Asia and a former Soviet republic that's home to Caucasus mountain villages and Black Sea beaches. For the first time ever, the RacingThePlanet Ultramarathon, a six stage, 250 kilometer (155 mile) ultramarathon will return to the same country to allow those who missed the first edition an opportunity to participate.

After a highly successful RacingThePlanet Ultramarathon in Georgia in August 2021, RacingThePlanet will return to Georgia, the Caucasus, in June 2022 for a special edition race that will qualify as part of the famed 4 Deserts Ultramarathon Series, alongside the Namib Race, the Atacama Crossing and The Last Desert. Completing RacingThePlanet: Georgia will serve as a qualifying race for The Last Desert in Antarctica.

Racers will experience lush green valleys, stunning national parks, monasteries from medieval times, picturesque countryside villages dotted around the mountains, and sample everything that Georgia has to offer including the unique history of the Dukhobor culture. Georgia is famous for Vardzia, a sprawling cave monastery dating to the 12th century which will also be the location for the finish line, and the ancient wine-growing region of Kakheti. The host town will be the capital of Tbilisi which is known for its diverse architecture and the maze-like cobblestone streets of its old town.

RacingThePlanet: Georgia (Special Edition) is not to be missed and is scheduled to begin on 19 June 2022.

[4 January 2022]

